1. The Rumanian Air Command has ordered new measures of surveillance on military airfields. The political commissar on each airfield has control of flight programs, air schools, and the assignment of gasoline for flight. In addition he directly commands the guards at hangars and at aviation gasoline bases.
2. Pilots in civil airfields are also under surveillance, since regular air transport of Rumanian products to the USSR has begun.
3. The Baneasa Airfield, near Bucharest, has subterranean storage facilities for supplies. A regular truck service brings these supplies to the field. Much of this traffic is in foodstuffs.
